LeFevre to speak at EDC meeting

Jim LeFevre, chief engineer for Kentucky Transportation Cabinet District 1, will be the keynote speaker at next Thursday's annual meeting of the Crittenden County Economic Development Corp. (CCEDC). LeFevre's attendance at the meeting will be especially meaningful because of the on-going U.S. 641 project and the questions that remain surrounding the highway's completion. The luncheon will be at noon. It is a public meeting. CCEDC shareholders and guests are welcome, but should RSVP to the EDC by Friday at 965-9294.

Invensys now legally Siemens

Invensys Rail Corp. has officially become Siemens Rail Automation Corp., according to a July 9 communication from the manufacturer of railway safety and control equipment. The change was effective July 1. On May 2, the acquisition of Invensys Rail by Siemens was completed. The Germany-based company first announced its acquisition of the United Kingdom-based Invensys in November 2012. Since the acquisition was completed, the local plant on South Main Street has added multiple lines to its production facility and added several new positions.

Public meetings

- Marion Tourism Commission will meet at 6 p.m. today (Thursday) at Marion Welcome Center.
- Carrsville City Commission will meet at 7 p.m. Friday in the back of the Baptist church located on the corner of Fleet and Church streets.
- Crittenden-Livingston Water District will meet at 7 p.m. Monday at the district office in Salem.
- Crittenden County Board of Education will meet at 5:30 p.m. Tuesday at the Ed-Tech Center for its monthly work session, held as part of a leadership retreat.
- Crittenden County Public Library Board of Directors will meet at 5 p.m. next Thursday at the library.

This week's poll at The Press Online asked, "If you live nearby, do you plan to attend at least one night of the Crittenden County Lions Club Fair?" More than half of those responding said they have no plans to attend the county fair when it runs July 29 through Aug. 3.

- Yes: 28%
- No: 55%
- Uncertain: 10%
- Do not live nearby: 7%

Grand jury indicts seven last week

STAFF REPORT

The Crittenden County Grand Jury last week indicted seven individuals on a variety of charges, mostly drug related.

A grand jury does not determine guilt or innocence. It simply decides whether enough evidence exists to begin prosecuting a case in Crittenden Circuit Court.

The following were indicted last Thursday:

- Marc A. Hocking, 26, of Marion was indicted on a charge of first-degree possession of a controlled substance (Oxycodone). Court records indicate that Hocking was a passenger in a vehicle stopped by Marion Police Chief Ray O'Neal on May 24 on North Weldon Street. The arrest report says Hocking had pills in the bottom of a cigarette package. He was also indicted for not having a controlled substance in its original container (hydrocodone) although he had a prescription.

- Glenda G. Barnes, 56, of Marion was indicted on a felony charge of first-degree possession of a controlled substance (methamphetamine) and misdemeanor charges of possession of marijuana and possession of drug paraphernalia (pipe). She was also indicted for a traffic violation, failure to wear a seat belt. Court records indicate that Barnes' vehicle was stopped at 2:53 p.m., after she allegedly backed out of a driveway onto U.S. 60 without a seat belt. State Trooper Daron Holliman's report says he observed in the driver's side floor board a marijuana joint, pipe and suspected meth residue.

- Jason K. Adams, 34, of Marion was indicted on a charge of first-degree wanton endangerment for allegedly assaulting and pointing a rifle at Kayla Adams on June 3. Court records claim that Adams choked the alleged victim, dragged her by the hair and then threatened her with a gun "thereby creating a risk of death or serious bodily injury."

- Joshua W. Cunningham, 35, of Sturgis was indicted on three felony charges of first-degree trafficking in a controlled substance (methamphetamine), second-

STAFF REPORT

Tragedy gripped the community early this week as the grim task of searching for a young boy's body came to a disheartening end late Monday night on the Ohio River just above the Crittenden-Union County line.

The body of Carter Nall, the 3-year-old son of Rob and Jill (Harkins) Nall of Clay, was found in the river by search and rescue teams about 11 p.m., Monday. He was located about 40 feet from where he had gone missing 31 hours earlier on a sandy riverbank near the Caseyville boat ramp in Union County.

Kentucky State Police spokesman Corey King said an autopsy will be conducted.

Authorities said Nall had been with family boating on the river Sunday afternoon when they temporarily docked their small pleasure craft and got out of the boat and onto the Kentucky river bank between Caseyville and Dekoven.

A news release from the state police said Nall had removed his life jacket to play on the sandy shore shortly before he went missing.

Observers say the Ohio River is especially full of current and floating debris right now because of summer rains and manipulation of the river by hydroelectric and water-control dams.

"I talked to his grandmother. They are just numb," said Wanda Driskill, who had worked with Carole Harkins, the boy's grandmother. "We are all praying for them, praying that God will give them strength to get through this."

Driskill has a grandson the same age.

"I can't even imagine how they feel. My heart is broken for their family," she said.

Authorities received a 911

Marion franchise patents new nationwide DQ Blizzard flavor

By CHRIS McGEE

STAFF WRITER

Marion Dairy Queen Grill and Chill General Manager Meri Orr and employee Maggie Harrison recently put the local restaurant on the national map.

The pair tinkered with new Blizzard flavors, and their lemon meringue pie filling idea has now been accepted by the nationwide chain. The Blizzard consists of crunchy pie pieces and whipped topping in creamy vanilla soft serve.

Orr said the process toward approval of a new Blizzard involved experimenting with different items and flavor combinations to see what worked. She added that patience and time are also part of the process for having a new flavor accepted.

Any new flavor must be sent in for approval by the franchise before it makes the menu.

"I sent it in the first time about a year, year and a half ago, and they didn't approve, so I tried again," Orr said. "I submitted it four times."

Orr said that Harrison is the one who came up with the pie flavor itself.

The new flavor, in addition to being in all the national stores, is currently the Blizzard of the Month.

Increase of dropout age will be mandatory by 2017

FROM STAFF AND AP REPORTS

So many Kentucky school districts have opted to increase the dropout age to 18 that Crittenden County and other districts yet to establish the new policy will now have to follow suit.

Gov. Steve Beshear announced July 10 that 96 school districts have decided to up the dropout age incrementally over the next four years from 16 to 18. That was the magic number for requiring districts statewide to do the same.

Senate Bill 97, known as the "Graduate Kentucky" bill, passed earlier this year and phases in an increase in the compulsory school attendance age from 16 to 18, amending the school attendance law created in 1934. The measure allows individual school districts to abandon a generations-old policy that allows 16-year-olds to quit school. The law includes a provision that forces the change statewide after 55 percent of the state's 173 school districts sign on. Since that number has now been reached, remaining school districts must now adopt and implement the policy within four years.

To quicken the change, Beshear's office and education officials began what they dubbed the "Blitz to 96." They did that in part by offering $10,000 to those first 96 districts that signed on.

Livingston and Union counties have already agreed to the increased dropout age policy and will receive the incentive. Crittenden, along with neighboring Webster, Lyon and Caldwell counties must now adopt and implement a compulsory attendance age of 18 no later than the 2017-18 school year. Those school districts who were not among the first 96 to adopt the policy will not receive the $10,000 seed money.

While Crittenden County Superintendent of Schools Dr. Rachel Yarbrough is in agreement with the legislation's aim of raising the dropout age, she believes a funding mechanism for all school districts is key to its success.

"Increasing the dropout age for students from the age of 16 to 18 is a smart approach for students across the Commonwealth in all school districts," she said. "I believe this initiative must come with an equal commitment for funding alternative education programs for all school districts across the Commonwealth as well, not just the first adopters."

Crittenden County Board of Education Chairman Chris Cook said time is on the district's side for complying with the new Graduate Kentucky requirements. Given four years, the local school district should have enough time to prepare for the mandate with or without financial ask-

Wade Buntin says judges will look for a level top line and good, strong pasterns when examining a goat for show. Proper placement of the feet is also important. The handler also plays an equally important part in the competition and must remain calm, not showing any negative emotion.

Buntin explains ins, outs of goat showing

By JASON TRAVIS
STAFF WRITER

Wade Buntin knows the important role 4-H and FFA programs play in a community. A member of the Crittenden County Extension Council and 4-H Council, Buntin is organizing final preparations for the Youth Goat Show for the 2013 Crittenden County Lion's Club Fair. Buntin said a judge for the competition has been selected from Leitchfield.

It's already been a busy summer for Buntin. A resident of the Sheridan community, Buntin was superintendent and his wife, Sue, secretary of all goat shows at the McCracken County Fair. The couple has been part of the fair for a number of years.

"By the time that show is over I'm already looking for judges for next year," Buntin said. "It's gone from about 65 goats to 235. It's growing every year. Next year will be an even bigger year."

Buntin also enjoys showing goats and received multiple Best of Breed and Permanent Champions honors last year. The couple travels to Florida, Alabama, Tennessee and Illinois to compete. In addition to attending the Heart of the Ozarks Fair in West Plains, Mo., Buntin will be a judge at the Mississippi State Fair in Jackson later this year.

When showing goats, Buntin said it's important to allow them to adjust to traveling by taking them in short hauls to area shows before traveling long distances.

"Goats are not as tough as people think they are. They can't stand stress. Stress kills more goats than diseases," he said. "By rule of thumb, if we go someplace to buy a goat, we won't buy one, we'll buy two off that same farm. If you bring one in, it's going to be stressed because it's looking for its buddies. They're more susceptible to problems."

Buntin enjoys getting more young people involved in showing livestock. It's a tradition he learned from his parents who were both 4-H leaders. He and Sue have also become 4-H leaders and have watched their children and grandchildren participate in shows.

After raising cattle and horses, the Buntins began exclusively raising goats nearly 20 years ago. They currently raise Lamancha and Toggenburg breeds. He said the biggest challenge is during kidding, usually in January and February. The couple converted part of their dairy barn into a kidding room and have it insulated and heated. They currently have almost 100 goats at their farm.

Preparation is the key when entering a show. At competitions, Buntin said youths need to take special care in the general appearance of each goat, making sure each one looks clean, is properly clipped and meets the breed standard.

"With a lot of judges, when that animal comes through the gate in the ring, they are making an opinion right then. If they don't like what they see when the animal comes through the gate, the handler is going to have to be very good to overcome all of that," Buntin said.

Buntin also advises handlers to maintain their composure when showing and not allow their emotions to show.

"When you've got a hold on the collar of a goat, it's like a direct communication. It knows if you're nervous. You've got to be calm. You can't get mad. I see a lot of people do that," he said. "They get mad, the goat gets excited and they are in trouble."

Buntin admits he is very competitive when showing. Sometimes to gain a better perspective of how a goat appears while being shown, he will watch with someone else as handler.

"I want to see how that goat is walking. I want to see it through the judge's eyes," he said. "When I'm on that collar I can't see everything that's going on. Especially if I get beat. There's some way I can improve."

Buntin said the important thing about any competition is to come prepared and have fun, noting each show is a very good learning experience for handlers, especially as they progress and gain more experience.

The youth goat show begins with weigh-in from 8 to 9:30 a.m. on Aug. 1 at the Crittenden County Fairgrounds. The show will begin at 9:30 a.m. and will consist of market classes, breeding classes and showmanship. The entry fee for the goat show includes $3 per head or $10 total if participants have five or more head of goats.

Coal key to energy independence

By SEN. DORSEY RIDLEY
GUEST COMMENTARY

Whether they know it or not, every Kentuckian is touched by our state's coal industry. It doesn't matter if you live and work in a coal field, are employed at one of Kentucky's hundreds of manufacturing facilities or are simply able to flip on a light switch for a little less money than elsewhere in our country, coal plays a major part in our lives.

That is why it is so disconcerting to read the news coming out of Washington, D.C., regarding the Environmental Protection Agency and the administration's position on coal. First, there was the proposed NSPS, or New Source Performance Standards, issued by the EPA for new coal burning power plants.

The NSPS places an arbitrary cap on carbon dioxide emissions on all new coal-fired power plants and is, in reality, a de facto ban on their construction. Then, the president announced that he would, by executive order, place new carbon dioxide emission standards on existing power plants. Daniel P. Schrag, a member of the President's Council of Advisers on Science and Technology, even went so far as to say that "a war on coal is exactly what's needed."

While no one will argue that we need no restrictions or regulations on the coal industry or coal-burning power plants, we also cannot ignore the fact that coal is an abundant and American source of power that currently supplies nearly 50 percent of America's power and 92 percent of Kentucky's power supply. Rather than attacking coal, we need to focus on where the coal industry has succeeded over the recent years and build on those accomplishments.

The coal fields here in western Kentucky are a perfect example of the coal industry and energy companies working to burn coal with better, cleaner methods. As recent as a decade ago, the coal mined in western Kentucky was less desirable than that mined in Appalachia.

Illinois River Basin coal is higher in sulfur and tends to emit more pollutants than the lower sulfur coal from the East. However, with the advent of new scrubbing technology being deployed in existing coal-fired power plants, western Kentucky coal can be burned just as cleanly as lower sulfur coal.

The result has been higher demand for Illinois River Basin coal and a job boom here in western Kentucky. That boom is being threatened by these new regulations.

To paraphrase Gov. Steve Beshear's State of the Commonwealth address from a few years back, it is time for the EPA to get off our backs. Coal has the potential to lead the effort to make our nation energy independent.

An all-of-the-above energy strategy, with coal providing the bulk load, would provide the opportunity to deploy renewable and next-generation energy sources where possible while still keeping costs low for American families and job creators.

I hope the EPA and the administration will reconsider its proposals. By embracing coal as a part of an all-of-the-above energy policy, we can create jobs, lower costs for families and take a big step toward energy independence—all of this with Kentucky leading the way.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

10 Commandments should be displayed

To the editor

Over the years, there has been much written in The Crittenden Press, as articles and as letters, about Christianity and many of our forefathers. Names that come to mind include Thomas Jefferson and Benjamin Franklin.

Thus, when I was sent an article about the establishment of a monument displaying the Ten Commandments in Bradford, Fla., I immediately recalled the display of Ten Commandments debate in Marion. In Florida, when an atheist group sued to have the Ten Commandments slab removed, they were told that the monument was standing in a area reserved for "free speech."

In that zone, the atheist group built a 1,500-pound granite bench with quotes from Thomas Jefferson, Benjamin Franklin, John Adams and Madeleine Murray O'Hair. I sensed from some of the articles and letters in The Press that some of these within this group were Christians rather than atheists. Perhaps I was wrong.

Now, the Ten Commandments in Marion stands not on the courthouse square but hidden down a side street where almost no one sees the monument. Why didn't Marion have a "free speech" zone for these Ten Commandments? Let a bench be built, just build the Ten Commandments 10 times larger.

Adults should take cue on life from children

I got the opportunity to visit and talk with some of the 8- to 10-year-old children at Western Kentucky Youth Camp on July 8. I also got the opportunity to see the children who participated in the Summer Reading Program have a mineral "dig" outside of the Ben E. Clement Mineral Museum on July 10. Both of these events made me reminisce about my own childhood.

Childhood, to me, is the golden window of time in life. In photography, the golden window is referred to as the optimal time to shoot photographs because there is the perfect or best sunlight. This time is after the sun rises in the morning or at dusk. It is the golden time in life because the biggest thing you have to worry about when you are a child is being home by dark and what adventures you are going to get into the next day.

Children don't have to worry about going to work, buying groceries or wondering how the house payment is going to get made.

I think it would serve adults well to take somewhat of a cue from children and not worry so much. Children are carefree. They just worry about playing and being with their friends and don't stress out over minor things.

I think that every so often, adults should go to a park and swing on the swings or get on the seesaw; maybe even play in the sandbox. Whichever of these activities you choose, make sure you are able to remember the joy of being a child.

Adults get so wrapped up in their daily lives that they forget to let loose and get in touch with their "inner kid" and relax.

Some children are in a hurry to grow up so they can do anything they want and not have to follow a bunch of rules. I believe if these children could see into the future and realize the stress and responsibilities of being an adult, they would savor this time in their lives and never want it to go away.

Adults, take a cue from the children: Live for today, enjoy the present and face tomorrow when it gets here.

sistance from Frankfort, he explained.

"Between now and the 2017-18 school year, our schools will be even better than they are today," Cook said. "We should be at a point where students in our schools do not think about dropping out, because they want to come to school and learn."

"So we are thankful that we have four more years to continue improving the educational experience in Crittenden County, without the distraction of another unfunded mandate."

Dr. Yarbrough explained to The Crittenden Press last month why the school district did not plan to be among the first to adopt a new dropout age policy. She said the district is not prepared to change its dropout age until it has a clear plan for creating programs for at-risk students.

"Planning for program fidelity and quality should be critical components of any mandate handed down to school districts, especially rural ones, from the state in this tight economy," she reiterated this week. "It will be critical for the state legislators to prioritize additional funding to all districts who seek on a daily basis to keep the focus on learning for all students regardless of the dropout age regulation."

Rep. Lynn Bechler (R-Marion) was among 15 lawmakers who voted against the Graduate Kentucky bill in the 2013 regular session of the General Assembly. Meantime, Sen. Dorsey Ridley (D-Henderson) supported the measure.

Digging reading

Participants in Crittenden County Public Library's summer reading program, themed "Digging into Reading" took a trip to the Ben E. Clement Mineral Museum last week to learn about minerals and rocks in conjunction with the literacy effort. Thirty-eight local children visited the museum across two days to see fluorspar, calcium and other minerals used in every-day life. The children concluded the morning with a dig at one of the rock piles outside of the museum. They dug up a favorite rock and gave it to one of the workers at the museum to clean and polish. They then got the rock back to put in their summer reading collection.

Golf cart used for watering city planters disallowed by police

STAFF REPORT

Taking care of the City of Marion's investment in potted flowers around town hit a bump in the road recently.

Last week, Marion Tourism Director Michele Edwards traded in her pull-behind wagon used to water municipal-owned planters for a modified golf cart equipped with a water tank. Later in the week, however, she was asked to stop using the vehicle by Marion Police Chief Ray O'Neal. He said use of the rig on roadways violates state traffic regulations.

The issue was brought up at Monday's Marion City Council meeting, but no action to reverse the order was taken. Mayor Mickey Alexander does, however, believe it should be deemed OK for Edwards to use the cart as a city service vehicle for municipal purposes only.

Currently, inside the City of Marion, golf carts of any type are not allowed on public roadways. A few years ago, the city council introduced an ordinance to allow golf carts meeting certain requirements on specified public roadways, but it was tabled and never approved. Because of that, golf carts of remain prohibited from being on the road, argues the police chief.

Meantime, O'Neal explains that vehicles like lawn tractors are allowed on city streets by state statute so long as they are outfitted with the proper equipment such as a safety light or slow-moving vehicle emblem.

Marion City Administrator Mark Bryant said he can make strong arguments both for and against municipal use of the converted golf cart for watering the tourism commission's substantial investment in flowers in planters located around the downtown area.

Bryant said the bigger question remains: Is the city going to allow golf carts to be used on Marion's streets?

Councilman Donnie Arflack said he does not necessarily have a problem with golf carts on city streets, so long as everyone is extended the same right.

The city council would have to adopt an ordinance to allow properly-equipped golf carts on designated roads before that could happen. To qualify, golf carts must meet stringent requirements under Kentucky Revised Statutes. Compliance with the law could cost hundreds of dollars in modifications to the average golf cart.

Marion Tourism Commission chairman Mike Wheeler believes Edwards' use of the cart should be allowed to water flowers so long as it is outfitted with safety equipment and designation as a city service vehicle.

Though Mayor Alexander would like to see the cart approved for watering purposes, he has deferred to O'Neal's interpretation of the law.

A solution is still being sought by city officials, Bryant said.

DCP contracts come due Aug. 1

I hope everyone had a safe and memorable Fourth of July; it couldn't have been a more beautiful day.

It was really nice attending the livestock association meeting in Marion on the evening of July 9. It is always nice to visit with local producers and find out a little bit more of what their interests are and how we can help with programs we may have.

At the meeting was our new County Extension Agent for Crittenden County, Meredith Hall. It is great that now both counties have an agriculture agent. Livingston County just recently hired their new ag Extension agent, Adam Barnes. It is great to have someone in each of these positions.

We have been without an ag agent for a little while, so I just wanted to welcome both of our new agents!

Primary nesting season
Primary nesting season this year runs through Aug. 1. With two weeks left in nesting season, producers may want to start making arrangements to complete their mid-contract management activities that were scheduled for 2013.

Once nesting season is over, you will have from Aug. 2, to Sept. 30 to complete any remaining practices that were scheduled for 2013, unless prohibited by procedure. Producers who were scheduled to plant introduced grasses in 2013 and have been unable to still have a "fall" window to do so. Strip-disking can still be done during this time frame as well.

COC Election
Last day to submit a nomination for the County Committee is Aug. 1. Nominations will be accepted through that date.

If you would like to nominate someone, or if you would be interested in running for the County Committee yourself, please obtain a form FSA-699A. We will have them available at the office or we will be happy to e-mail, mail or fax one to you.

We appreciate your participation in this election.

Please return your nominations by mail or drop them off in the office by Aug. 1.

DCP Reminders
The final day to sign your Direct and Counter-Cyclical Program contract is Aug. 2. This is a final date. If you do not have all signatures on the farm with shares turned in by this time, you will not receive any funds. If you sign for your share but the other producer(s) do not, no one will be receiving payment.

Please make sure that you have all signatures in for your farm by Aug. 2.

Grain field day, irrigation forum Aug. 1

By KATIE PRATT
UK AG COMMUNICATIONS

Specialists with the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture, Food and Environment are hosting the Corn, Soybean and Tobacco Field Day Aug. 1 from 7:30 a.m. until noon at the UK Research Farm in Princeton. An Irrigation Forum will follow at 1:30 p.m.

The field day will feature tours of UK research plots for corn and soybeans and tobacco. The grain crops and tobacco tours will run concurrently, but producers will have opportunities to participate in parts of both.

During the corn and soybean tour, specialists from UK and the University of Tennessee will present information about the latest research in soil management, crop management and integrated pest management. Topics include compaction, fragipan, cover crops, disease problems, herbicide resistance, insecticide seed treatments, high-yield soybeans, corn row widths and populations, and new hybrids and varieties.

Continuing education credits are available for pesticide applicators for three general hours and one specific hour in categories 1A, 4, 10 and 12. Certified crop advisors can receive 3.5 continuing education units in the following categories: 1.5 in pest management and one each in crop management and soil and water.

The field day concludes with lunch provided by the Kentucky Corn Growers Association, the Kentucky Soybean Board and DuPont.

The UK Research Farm is located at 1134 Hopkinsville St. in Princeton.

UK specialists will host the Irrigation Forum with the intent of answering participants' questions surrounding irrigation systems in Kentucky. The two-hour forum will be held at the UK Research and Education Center, which is across the street from the UK Research Farm. Forum panelists include representatives from the Kentucky Division of Water, Kentucky Geological Survey, Natural Resources Conservation Service, UK specialists and farmers currently irrigating their fields. The Kentucky Small Grain Growers Association is sponsoring the forum.

NEWS BRIEFS

Livingston intros dog ordinance

Despite outspoken opposition, Livingston Fiscal Court introduced a vicious animals ordinance Friday aimed at specific breeds of dog—pit bulls, bull terriers, Staffordshire terriers and Rottweilers—deemed by the legislation to be dangerous to the public. The measure, if passed on second reading as expected at Tuesday's fiscal court meeting, places numerous restrictions on ownership of those canine breeds. The meeting will begin at 5 p.m.

State seeks input on public health

The Kentucky Department for Public Health is seeking input from Kentuckians for the state health improvement plan. The state's residents can offer their thoughts about improving Kentucky's overall health status by filling out an online survey by Aug. 1.

The survey is at chfs.ky.gov/dph/CenterforPerformanceManagement.htm. The state public health department recently drafted the state health assessment.

It examines the state's health and identifies key problems and assets. The department says the goal is to provide data to guide decisions for a state health improvement plan.

Kentucky ranks 44th nationally in major health status categories, according to the America's Health Rankings Profile for 2012. The Bluegrass State has high rates for smoking, cancer deaths and obesity. — The AP

KSP apps taken starting Monday

Applications are being taken starting next week for the next Kentucky State Police cadet class, which is scheduled to start next summer.

Written and physical fitness tests will be given on the same day.

The testing begins in Murray on Monday and continues through Sept. 24 in Richmond. Applications to take the exam must be submitted in advance. Deadlines are listed on the state police website at kentuckystatepolice.org/recruit/process.htm, along with links to download an application and study guide. — The AP

Deadline extended for farmers to file acreage reports

STAFF REPORT

Farmers now have until August to turn in their annual acreage reports.

John W. McCauley, USDA Kentucky Farm Service Agency (FSA) State Executive Director, announced the extension of the FSA acreage reporting deadline last week.

Farmers and landowners were given an additional 18 calendar days to submit their annual report of acreage to their local FSA county office with the deadline extended from Monday to Aug. 2. Only the FSA reporting deadline has been extended.

The acreage reporting requirement for crop insurance did not change and was due Monday.

"We want to ensure our producers maintain their program benefits by filing their reports accurately and in a timely manner for all crops and land uses, including prevented and failed acreage," said McCauley.

Accurate acreage reports are necessary to determine and maintain eligibility for various programs, such as the Direct and Counter-cyclical Program (DCP); the Average Crop Revenue Election Program (ACRE); the Conservation Reserve Program (CRP); and the Non-insured Crop Disaster Assistant Program (NAP).

Acreage reports for FSA are considered timely this year when filed at the county office by the new applicable final crop reporting deadline of Aug. 2. Producers should contact their county FSA office if they are uncertain about reporting deadlines.

Producers also should visit their USDA Service Center to complete acreage reporting for FSA.

For questions on this or any FSA program, producers should contact the Salem FSA office in Salem by calling 988-2180 or seeking information online at www.fsa.usda.gov.

Spelling bees are part of a rich history of learning

Before the days of computers with spell-check and all the shortcuts taken with texting, spelling was a very important part of a student's school-learning experience. You took it very seriously and tried your best to learn all the words in your spelling book.

Now, the younger generation has learned a different kind of spelling through texting. I have to have a cheat sheet nearby to even know what words the letters stand for. At times, it's best I don't even know.

Give me the good old days with whole words to write a sentence with. Here are some good times of long ago when spelling was important.

How it came to 'bee'
The National Spelling Bee was launched by the Louisville Courier-Journal in 1925. With competitions, cash prizes and a trip to the nation's capital, the bee hoped to stimulate "general interest among pupils in a dull subject."

Every fall, tens of thousands of schools enrolled in the program. During the fall and winter, schools would conduct spelling bee programs at the classroom-, grade- or school-level and send their spelling champions to the next level of competition as designated by their local spelling bee sponsors.

Here are some of Crittenden County students who made it to the state level at Louisville in the 1930s.

Jan. 20, 1933
Crittenden County champion chosen from 21 entrants

Willard Hunt, of Piney Fork School, is the champion speller of Crittenden County for 1932-33, and will be the county's representative at the annual Courier-Journal Bee which will be held in Louisville April 19.

His ability to spell the word 'unconscious' after Wayne Watson of Blooming Rose had misspelled the word, gave him the county championship in the match held at the Marion Graded School Auditorium last Saturday.

Willard Hunt is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hunt and a pupil of Mrs. E.V. Alexander. He is 14 years old and in the seventh grade.

Twenty-one entrants competed in the Saturday contest. The winner will have an all-expenses paid trip to the state match by the Louisville Courier-Journal.

The final of this ninth annual spelling bee will be broadcast over station WHAS between 4 and 5 p.m. and every boy and girl in Crittenden County is invited to listen in.

The winner will be given a trip to Washington, D.C., for the National Spelling Bee and other good spellers will share $5 cash and dictionaries.

The winner of the state meet will be sent to Washington, D.C., in the spring to represent Kentucky in the ninth annual National Spelling Bee with a week of sightseeing thrown in.

April 28, 1933
Boys take large part of honors

The results of the ninth annual Courier-Journal State Spelling Bee tell that Samuel Hayes, 12, from Clarkson in Grayson County took advantage of the mistake made by the contestant from Madison County—on the word "monastery"—to win the match and a trip to Washington, D.C.

Hunt of Crittenden County wasn't listed among the winners.

Jan. 18, 1935
Thelma Boyd of White Hall School is champion speller
Thelma Boyd, of White

Hall School, emerged victorious in the Crittenden County Spelling Bee held Saturday, Jan. 12, at the Grade School Auditorium here. 'Modified' is the word which won the 1935 spelling championship for Thelma Boyd.

Thelma is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Boyd, and is a pupil of Miss Virginia Lee Elkins at White Hall School, a one-room schoolhouse near View which is in a remote section of the county with the instructor being forced to resort to truck and saddle horse in order to reach the building.

Thelma is 13 years old and is in the seventh grade. Thelma has never been away from Crittenden County and is looking forward to her trip to Louisville, where she will represent her county in the Courier-Journal statewide spelling bee.

Miss Elkins, who is one of the county's youngest teachers, will accompany her pupil to Louisville."

(Clara Mohler, representative from Akron, Ohio, won the National Spelling Bee at Washington, D.C., with the word "intelligible.")

Jan. 31, 1936
Spellers meet Saturday for county honors

The county spelling meet will be held here in the graded school auditorium at Marion. Twenty one entrants have been registered for the meet, several of whom have competed in previous contests.

The contestants and the schools represented are: Thomas Collins, Chapel Hill; Bruce Vaughn, Brown; and Mary Jennings, Lone Star—all of whom have competed in previous contests; Bobby Enoch, Glendale; Lula May Hopkins, Odessa; Lucy Pritchett, Olive Branch; Denzil Hunt, Copperas Springs; Reed Kemper, Midway; Elizabeth Hunt, Pleasant Hill; James William Belt, Hebron; James McNeeley, Crider; Opal Daughtrey, Dycusburg; Hazel Winters, Mexico; Anna Rigsby, Hoods Creek; Pauline Crash, New

Feb. 7, 1936
George McEwen, 11, representing Marion Graded School, defeated 37 Crittenden County spellers in the countywide spelling bee.

Young McEwen, in the third grade and a pupil of Miss Rebecca Moore, correctly spelled 'development' after Mary Jennings, 14, of Lone Star and a pupil of Miss Hazel Dameron, had failed to do so, and he won the contest by spelling the word 'persuade.' McEwen is a son of W.W. McEwen of Marion. This is the first time in 12 years that a Marion student has won the county contest.

Bruce Vaughn, a student of Brown School, was the 36th speller to go down, missing 'burglar,' and was immediately preceded by Ann Rigsby of Hoods Creek, who failed on 'judgment.'

April 24, 1936
Local speller wins award in state contest

George McEwen, Crittenden County spelling champion, was rated 31st in the state spelling contest conducted at Louisville last Thursday and Friday, and as a result, was awarded a substantial prize by the Courier Journal, sponsor of the state meeting.

One hundred and nine contestants were entered in the written contest where a certain average and grade were necessary in order to become eligible for the oral division. A total of 44, of which McEwen was one, were successful in the eligibility list of the written contest and as a result entered the oral match.

The written test was composed of 50 words while the oral contest was the old type of match where the last one remaining was declared the state winner. McEwen was the only school pupil entered in the meet that was below sixth-grade.

At the conclusion of the written test, the winners were announced at a luncheon given to the contestants by the sponsors.

Young McEwen misspelled the word 'ghastly.' He was accompanied to Louisville by his instructor, Miss Rebecca Moore.

Although these hard-working students didn't make it to nationals in Washington, D.C., I would like to think they still had a wonderful—although nerve-racking—experience at the state spelling bee in Louisville.

God’s mercy available to all those in need before Christ returns

By JOEY DURHAM
GUEST COLUMNIST

I want to bring a devotional to your heart on this subject. "Why Hasn't Jesus Returned?"

I'll take my text out of II Peter 3:4-5 and also verses 8-9, where we read, "And saying, Where is the promise of his coming? For since the fathers fell asleep, all things continue as they were from the beginning of the creation. For this they willingly are ignorant of, that by the word of God the heavens were of old, and the earth standing out of the water and in the water: But, beloved, be not ignorant of this one thing, that one day is with the Lord as a thousand years, and a thousand years as one day. The Lord is not slack concerning his promise, as some men count slackness; but is longsuffering to us-ward, not willing that any should perish, but that all should come to repentance."

Things are rapidly changing in this world. Jesus Christ is being pushed out, not only of our community here, but also our state and nation. Those who trample on biblical morality are exalted as heroes, while those who honor God and His Word are labeled as propagators of hate and "weird."

The true believer may often ask the question, "Why hasn't Jesus returned, given the deteriorating spiritual and moral condition of our day?"

No doubt, the Lord anticipated just such a question and before the answer is given, Peter is instructed by the Holy Ghost to forecast the days in which we live. The unsaved have become increasingly bold as they "scoff" at the notion of the return of Jesus Christ and purposefully drive themselves deeper into sin. They base their wishful thinking on this thought: since Jesus hasn't come yet, He must not be coming at all.

After revealing the characteristics of these last days, God answers the question, "Why hasn't Jesus returned?"

In Verse 9 we see that God patiently waits because he is long suffering and doesn't want any to perish but desires that all should come to repentance. The unsaved misinterpret this long suffering as a reason to continue deeper in their sin, but the fact remains that Jesus is coming!

For those who choose to live "willingly ignorant," everything will suddenly change with horrifying consequences in a moment of time.

In I Thessalonians 5:2-3, we see these consequences: "For ye yourselves know perfectly that the day of the Lord so cometh as a thief in the night. For when they shall say, Peace and safety; then sudden destruction cometh upon them, as travail upon a woman with child; and they shall not escape."

Why has Jesus Christ not returned yet?

It's simple. God Almighty does not want any to perish; or, in other words, die lost in their sin to spend eternity in Hell and the Lake of Fire.

God does desire all to repent of sin and turn to Jesus Christ as Savior.

If you don't want to be saved, that's your choice to make, but you will not escape the consequences that the Word of God plainly gives as the result for that decision.

I beg of you to come to Jesus today before it's too late for you.

My story of building my own business

(Editor's note: This is the first in a two-part series from Rev. Lucy Tedrick. The final installation can be found in next week's issue of The Crittenden Press.)

When Donahue was trumping the so-called Women's Movement on TV many years ago, I wanted to yell into the TV and say, if all the women would get out and work as hard as I had to in order to start my business they would not have to sit back and blame men for them not getting ahead in life.

This is written to remind everyone how wonderful this God-blessed and blood-bought nation is and to encourage anyone to realize the unlimited opportunities this nation offers for all who will work hard, learn all you can, and make up your mind you can do anything you really want to do. Anything worthwhile I ever did, God gets the glory, and all the rest I take all the blame.

You will see why it really galled me when I heard Obama say, "If you have a business, you did not build that." I thought what an idiotic statement, and then I remembered he had never even started a business, much less built one. For those who look at a business owner only from an employee's point of view or from that of a person who has never run a business, I would like you to know a little about what it is like to build and run a business, especially when you start out on a shoe-string budget. When our father was killed on Easley Curve on Ky. 91 North in 1934, he left mama with 11 children, ages two to 19. A sale was ordered for half of our land, stock and machinery. I listened to my mother's sobs standing out on the hill with us little children around her as she watched the barn as the auction took place. She was wondering how she would ever get us fed and cared for with so little left for us to make a living on.

Being four years old and not able to comfort her, I grieved over her pain and hard work that I saw her go through during my youth. I made up my mind that one day I was going to make a lot of money and give Mama everything she would want and make her life easier. We had a lot of hard years, but love for each other and determination to get ahead drove us. To me, our mother is the greatest woman who ever lived. When we lost our dad, a Masonic friend came to tell Mama about a good Masonic home that would take us kids as she could not take care of all of us. Even though I was only four, I remember well her words: "Seldon, no one is getting my kids. If they starve, I'll starve with them." When he left, Mama said, "I don't think near as much of him as I did. For him to think I would give up my children!" Well, she and our older brothers and sisters who were home helped. Our older sister, Virginia, would send us clothes her children outgrew, as she worked in Chicago.

Our older brother, Lyle, a prince of a man, helped Mama with the business problems and helped us as much as he could, because he had a wife and family to support. We were living in the greatest depression this nation had ever known. We walked barefooted to school all summer, as we only had one pair of shoes and two pairs of overalls, underwear and socks a year. Our dresses were hand-me-downs or made out of flour sacks. Our lunch buckets were gallon sorghum buckets. Our lunch was pork when we had it, biscuits, fried potatoes, sorghum in some of the biscuits, and later, some peanut butter and crackers when we could sell enough cream and eggs to get it. When Lyle's store had bread go bad, we would cut off the bad and put butter, sugar and cinnamon on it and toast it for our dessert. It is still a favorite of mine. Rarely did we have enough sugar to make muffins or sorghum cookies, but when we did we were rich. My brother Willard was determined that we five youngest children would get a high school education so we could better ourselves. He and Mama worked and saved to do that. A sister, Gladys, lived in West Frankfort, Ill., and Willard sent some of us there to go to school for two reasons. One was because my sister went to the Church of God that taught a holy life for Christ's followers, and he said maybe that would help his sisters to be good. The school also had a better curriculum than was found in Crittenden County. Our brother, Gleaford, would come take us to his home on some weekends a year, and we would take back canned foods from Mama's cabinets and milk to help us through. My love was for business—which included shorthand, typing, business machines and business math—and became my chosen vocation. So when I finished school, I came home. With the help of a dear friend of the family, John Flanary, I got a job at the highway department in Frankfort as a secretary. Itchy feet caused me to take a leave of absence and take off to Chicago and take a secretarial job at Armour Meat Packing Co. I still have the good recommendation the Highway Department gave me when Armour checked up on my application. But that job could not hold me either, and I did not like the smell. As a kid, I liked working with hair. I always wanted to come back home to live. I found that you could not make much as a secretary in Marion. But I knew Carrie Ainsworth, a beautician, charged more money than the others, as she was really good. So I decided to go to cosmetology school and be the best in the business. After a stint at home, Mama went with me to Gene Guess at The People's Bank and went on my note for $50 to get me back to Chicago to enter college and stay with my sister. I worked at night to put myself through school and sent $5 home every six months for the interest on the loan. (Rev. Lucy Tedrick is a Marion minister. She shares her views regularly in this newspaper. Her opinions are her own, and are not necessarily those of the newspaper.)

Drennan returns from Navaho Nation mission trip in Arizona

By CHRIS MCGEE
STAFF WRITER
Rasheed Ogunlaru, a renowned life coach, once said, "Legacy is not what's left tomorrow when you're gone. It's what you give, create, impact and contribute today while you're here that then happens to live on." If this is the case, then David Drennan of Emmanuel Baptist Church in Marion and nine members from Northside Baptist Church in Princeton have started building their own personal legacies with a recent trip to the Navaho Nation near Blue Gap, Ariz. The team left June 10 and returned June 18. "I had a wonderful experience and would go back again in a heartbeat," Drennan said, adding that the group helped with vacation Bible school. "We did a lot of ministry work there. It strengthens the one who goes out and serves as well as the ones who are already serving there." One primary task the group accomplished was the dedication of a church on June 13 in Blue Gap. The sanctuary has been an ongoing project of the Princeton church for the past five years. Some of the mission teams from Northside have aided in a great deal of the construction. Despite the success, the mission team has achieved its goals against the odds. "Where they serve, it's not a popular thing to be a Christian," Drennan said. "It's not an understood thing to go to church on Sunday."

Drennan said one of the things he took from the trip was dedication. "Those people who believe are very dedicated to the work that they do, which reminds us that we need to be dedicated in our communities," he said. "We need to be more of a witness when we return home where we sometimes don't as much as we should." Space Jam and Jelly As some may know, Drennan has an alter ego, Little Caesar Rodney the clown. He has a foundation that is an offshoot of that character. One of the programs it puts on is a Space Jam and Jelly summer basketball tournament for kids. At the event, children have a chance to play basketball and eat peanut butter and jelly sandwiches. This year's event was held last month at the Tolu Community Center. Drennan said 15 kids participated in the event. "We had kids from age five to high school age," Drennan said. He said the group played one game of basketball to 30 points and then he spoke between halves. "During halftime, which we used as a water and rest break, I talked about the trip to Arizona and (the children) were really interested in hearing about it," Drennan said. He said there were some extended family members of some of the children at the basketball tournament who came from as far away as Missouri and Michigan.

DROWNING

call at about 4:30 p.m. Sunday alerting them about the missing boy.

Rescue workers responded immediately with personnel and equipment from Union County, the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources, Paducah-McCracken County Rescue Squad and the American Red Cross. Monday morning, Crittenden County Rescue Squad was asked to join in the search, launching a boat from Riverview Park/Dam 50 and working up stream toward Caseyville. Dogs, helicopters, boats and other assets were employed as searchers had hoped to find the lad on shore and alive.

A candlelight vigil was held Monday night at Riverview Park as friends of the family gathered on the riverbank to pray for a miracle. Sisters Kim Orr and Britt Gardner helped organize the vigil on the Crittenden County shore. Gardner said Nall's grandparents live in Crittenden County and the family has many connections and friends in this community.

Orr said she heard about Nall being missing when she returned home from church Sunday evening. Some friends had called and asked the church to remember the family in its prayers, but Orr said they wanted to do more. The vigil was organized in order to help friends and family to deal with the unsettling situation.

"We're just a small community that has pulled together. We want to support the family and let them know we care," Orr said.

Elizabeth Floyd had gone to the prayer vigil on the riverbank because she knows the family and the boy's mother, who is originally from Crittenden

County. She said that during her interactions with Nall's mother in the past, "all she talked about were her kids."

Carter was the middle of three children. His mother went to school in Marion and had worked in and around Crittenden County for several years although she had recently taken a job in another county. Both his mother and father are nurses, friends said.

Crittenden County students earn high scores on tests

STAFF REPORT

Eight Crittenden County High School students have achieved college credit for high scores on the standardized Advanced Placement tests given in May by the College Board. The students who score at least a three, out of five, on the AP exam can receive college credit or qualify for admission into advanced classes when they enroll in college.

Advanced Placement courses are rigorous classes taken during high school but are taught at the college level. The courses typically require an extensive amount of study, reading and writing. There are 34 different AP courses available and six are offered at CCHS. Each course culminates in a standardized test which could earn the student college credit.

In biology, three students received passing scores of a three including Harley Butler, son of Jeff and Sandra Butler; Ashley Collyer, daughter of Stacy and Kim Collyer and Hayden McConnell, son of Gary and Patti McConnell. The biology course is offered to students who wish to pursue interests in the life sciences, including molecules, cells, heredity, organisms and populations. The course is open to both juniors and seniors.

In the junior-level English Literature and Composition, five CCHS students received passing scores. Scoring a three on the English exam were Dylan Doyle, son of David and Charlene Doyle; Brenden Phillips, son of Donnie and Kara Phillips, and Leah Scott, daughter of Ken Scott and Carol Davis.

Earning a four were Micah Hollamon, son of Greg and Dawn Hollamon and McConnell. The literature and composition course is designated for students with a command of standard English, an interest in exploring and analyzing challenging classical and contemporary literature and a desire to analyze and interpret literary themes.

Six students also merited high marks on the junior-level U.S. History exam. Earning scores of a four were Butler, Doyle, Taylor Fritts, daughter of Jeffery and Rene Fritts, McConnell and Phillips.

Receiving a five on the U.S. History test, achieved by only 10 percent of American students taking the exam in 2013, was Hollamon. The U.S. History course is a survey class covering material from pre-Columbian times through the present in America.

Students read and write extensively for both the history class and examination.

Crittenden County High School Principal Rhonda Callaway congratulated the students on their achievements.

"I am excited for our AP students who recently received their spring scores. It is an accomplishment that is representative of rigorous preparation by our teachers, followed by hard work on the part of our students. Congratulations to all of you," Callaway said.

Take time now to enhance relationships

Warm summer days are a time for growth and renewal. It can also be a good time to enhance your relationship with a spouse or partner. The Kansas State Extension program, "Couple's Talk", emphasizes the following relationship tips:

Make time for each other every day to talk and share.

Concentrate on positive thoughts and feelings during this couple time. Complaining and debating can wait for another time.

Emphasize positive energy, such as joy, happiness and excitement.

Avoid evaluating your partner's feelings.

Use "I" statements versus speaking for your partner.

Express your appreciation for your partner by pointing out the things he or she does that you like or respect.

Be an effective listener. Remove distractions, empathize, pay attention to meaning, act interested and ask questions—but don't do all the talking.

Have a "time-out" rule for occasions when one partner does not want to continue a discussion. Don't ignore the conversation, but come back to it another time.

Focus on the present.

Remember that relationship building is a process that changes over time.

Expanded Food and Nutrition Education Program or EFNEP, is administered through the Crittenden County Cooperative Extension Office. Sue Parrent is the program assistant. She celebrated 10 years with the program last week.

Celebrating 10 years

By JASON TRAVIS
STAFF WRITER

On July 8, Sue Parrent celebrated her 10th anniversary as the program assistant for the Expanded Food and Nutrition Education Program or EFNEP, administered through the Crittenden County Cooperative Extension Office. Parrent also received a bouquet of summer flowers from her colleagues to help celebrate the occasion.

The EFNEP program provides educational and nutritional information to homemakers that include how to eat healthy and manage available resources. Clients are given information that can range from developing cooking skills to learning new projects like canning food.

"The EFNEP program is very special to me and for the people of Crittenden County. I have now worked with parents who have gone through the program as children. It's good to see the program progressing along," Parrent said.

She also expressed appreciation to the community and her colleagues for their support in helping to promote the program's initiatives.

"It's been a great experience. I've learned a lot since I've been here and Nancy Hunt has been a great mentor. I appreciate my Extension family. We've worked together closely over the years and they mean a lot to me," Parrent said.

Hall receives community welcome

On July 11, a welcome reception was held for Meredith Hall, who began her position as Crittenden County's Extension Agent for Agriculture and Natural Resources at the beginning of the month. A Henderson native and resident of Sturgis, Hall was welcomed by local residents and public officials. Crittenden County Schools Public Information Officer and Community Educator Holly White (left) greets Hall at the reception. In addition to her responsibilities as the Agriculture Agent for Crittenden County, Hall will also assist with 4-H projects. This week she is with 4-H members at summer camp. She encourages county residents to contact her at the Extension Office at 965-5236 with their ag-related questions.

Pancake breakfast to honor Korean War vets

STAFF REPORT

VFW Post Quartermaster William Clarke invites all Korean War veterans to a Pancakes for Patriots breakfast beginning at 8 a.m., on Saturday, July 27.

The breakfast is part of a nationwide event to observe the 60th anniversary of the Korean War Armistice in July of 1953. The negotiated armistice ended hostilities in the Korean War, which began June 25, 1950, when communist North Korea invaded democratic South Korea.

A national celebration will be held at the Korean War Veterans Memorial in Washington, D.C., also on July 27.

Organizers of both national and local events want the public to know that the sacrifices and valor shown in the so-called "Forgotten War" will never be forgotten.

The local VFW breakfast will honor veterans and educate community members about the service and sacrifices made by all war veterans. Clarke invites Korean War veterans to attend the breakfast, whether they are post members or not.

"We should honor all veterans from all wars. They all sacrificed their lives for us," Clarke said. "On July 27 we are honoring all Korean War veterans in Crittenden County."

Clarke said the breakfast will be a great opportunity for veterans to fellowship and reminisce.

For more information call the VFW Post in Marion at 965-4100.

Zumbathon scheduled to benefit Happy Feet program

STAFF REPORT

It's a great opportunity to support a worthy cause while engaging in a healthy physical activity. A Zumbathon to benefit Happy Feet will be held from 5 to 7 p.m., Thursday, July 18 (today), at the CCMS/HS multi-purpose room. The cost is $5. Water and snacks will be provided.

Crittenden County Schools Community Educator Holly White said over 100 Crittenden County students have been fitted for tennis shoes for the 2013-14 school year.

Students will receive a brand new pair of Nike tennis shoes purchased from Hodge's Sports and Apparel of Marion. White asks the community to join in supporting the program that reduces one barrier in a student's life.

Community CALENDAR

Revival in the Valley begins July 25 in Fredonia

By CHRIS MCGEE
STAFF WRITER

More than 75 percent of people in the United States claim to be Christians, according to a recent Gallop Poll. Yet in Kentucky, on any given Sunday, only 13.9 percent are at a church service, reports the "2010 U.S. Religious Affiliation Census" from the Glenmary Research Center. In smaller communities that number is 10 percent or less.

Van Yandell, who along with his wife Marjorie, belongs to the Southern Baptist North American Missionary Board (NAMB), said these numbers concern him. That is one of the reasons he decided to put together the Revival in the Valley that will take place July 25-27 at the Buddy Rogers American Legion Ballpark in Fredonia.

Yandell said this is the second Revival in the Valley he has participated in.

The three-day event will begin with music at 7:30 p.m. each night followed by a message brought by local pastors and Yandell.

Justin Ramey, pastor at Crider Baptist Church, will speak on July 25 and will be followed by Yandell on July 26. July 27, which will also be children's night, will feature Danny Sherill from Unity Baptist Church in Fredonia. All children will receive a gift on children's night.

Jerrell White, who is a NAMB missionary and interim pastor at Emmanuel Baptist Church in Marion, along with Ish Teitloff will be the congregational song leaders during the revival. Teitloff will be on the piano for the first night of the revival and will be doing special songs throughout the revival. Vickie Gray, Tim Barnes, Jerry Perkins, Ron Yonts, Taylor Egbert and Jerry Capps are some of the confirmed musicians for the event.

There will be Bibles, New Testaments, Book of John and other free Christian literature available each night.

Yandell said that when he was preaching at Deer Creek Baptist Church in January 2012, someone mentioned to him that an organized revival for the smaller communities would be a good idea. So he ran with the idea and began to organize the event.

He said one of the reasons he has worked so hard to organize the event is because something happens with an event of this magnitude.

"Everybody wants to help,

but nobody wants to organize, you know, take the bull by the horns," Yandell said.

But he added that everyone has been quick to help with anything he has asked of them.

Yandell said a collection plate will not be passed at the event.

"A lot of times when people visit a church for the first time, the first thing that happens is a collection plate is put in front of them," Yandell said. "We will put out a couple of buckets; if people want to help, they can."

He added that thanks to last year's donations, the event broke even.

Yandell said there were 70-75 people at each service last year, but added that the weather played a role in that number because it wasn't very agreeable. He is hoping the weather will cooperate this year so the event will have a bigger turnout.

He said a new fire and determination is what he wants people to take away from the revival.

"We want to encourage and motivate other Christians to work harder in their own churches," Yandell said.

He humbly explained why he organized the event.

"I saw a need and did what I could to fill it," he said. "We organized this to win the lost and build the smaller local churches."

Shope on Walker Street scheduled for October 19

STAFF REPORT

The Shoppe on Walker Street committee met recently to approve the application for their Oct. 19 show that will be held the same Saturday as Christmas in Marion. The purpose of the show is to offer different items from those sold at the Christmas in Marion Arts and Crafts Show.

Last year the show was held on Carlisle Street. It has been moved to the Senior Center directly across from Fohs Hall, making it closer to Christmas in Marion Arts and Crafts Show at Fohs Hall.

SUBMITTED PHOTO

The Shoppe on Walker Street committee met at the Extension Office to finalize the application for the Oct. 19 show. This year's show will be held at the Senior Center located at 210 N. Walker St. The committee includes (seated, from left) Myrle Dunning, Kathy Bechler and Darl Henley; (back row) Sarah Ford, Dot Boone and Gladys Brown.

Scentsy, Stanley, Watkins and Mary Kay.

The show will run from 9 a.m., to 4 p.m. Flea market items or handmade items are not eligible. For more information on eligible items, contact the Extension Office at 965-5236.

"Shoppers can park and have two places to visit with this show being located across the street from Fohs Hall. We know our attendance will increase," Hunt said.

A $35 fee must accompany the application in order to reserve a booth. Applications will be accepted until Sept. 15 or until spaces are filled. No refunds will be given after Sept. 15.

EKU names Ramage to spring 2013 president's list

STAFF REPORT

Eastern Kentucky University has announced that 1,145 students earned president's list honors for the spring 2013 semester.

The list includes Chase Ramage of Burna, a senior music major.

The president's list was established by the university to recognize outstanding academic achievement. It is bestowed upon full-time undergraduate students who attain a perfect 4.0 grade point average for a semester.

"All of us at EKU are committed to academic excellence and the success of our students," EKU President Doug Whitlock said, "and we are especially pleased to recognize those students who have excelled to the point of perfection during a semester's work."

Workers with Lee's Masonry Construction put up a new wall Monday inside the former lobby of Crittenden County Elementary School for administrative offices at the building as part of an overall renovation and expansion of the 30-year-old facility.

Renovation juggles CCES arrangements

By JASON TRAVIS
STAFF WRITER

Parents and students will immediately notice major changes at Crittenden County Elementary School as the renovation of and additions to the building continue into the upcoming school year.

The main entrance has been temporarily relocated to the front of the building at its southwest corner. Administrative offices have also been temporarily moved to an existing classroom near that location. For security, a camera and buzzer will be installed at the entrance. Currently, construction is concentrated on remodeling the administrative offices and the addition of new restrooms on the northeast part of the school at the end of the first-grade hallway.

Much of the existing lobby will be reconfigured to include additional resource rooms, a nurse's area and a redesigned front office suite. Walls will be constructed from the existing area of the front offices and extend into the lobby to create the additional rooms. The remaining portion of the lobby will be used as a hallway to access other parts of the building, including the library and restrooms.

"We really won't have a lobby after all of this is complete. It's going to be a walkway basically," said Crittenden County Elementary School Principal Melissa Tabor.

Once construction on the front entrance is complete, the design calls for the installation of an outside canopy. Parents and visitors will enter the building through a scaled-down lobby or reception area located in the administrative office suite.

Tabor asks for patience and understanding from parents during the construction

WiFi technology aimed at improving learning

By JASON TRAVIS

Beginning in August, Crittenden County School District will pilot a digital conversion plan that will allow middle and high school students to bring their own technology into the classroom for instruction.

Crittenden County is joining a growing number of school districts across the country that allows students to bring their own Internet-ready mobile devices into the classroom for educational purposes. The digital conversion plan will allow middle and high school students to bring laptops, tablets or smartphones inside the classroom as determined by their teachers. School officials said the success of the program will depend on a number of factors, including how well students follow policies and guidelines for use of the technology at school.

The process of initiating a digital conversion plan began in the spring of 2012 when the school district's technology committee visited Larue County High School and later Graves County High School to observe their individual technology programs. Last January, the school board approved the completion of the wireless technology infrastructure for the middle and the high school to not exceed $65,000. This allowed for the installation of wireless access points in each classroom at both schools. Previously, both schools had only 25 access points. Officials indicate that one access point in each classroom can handle approximately 30 to 40 devices.

Vince Clark, supervisor of instruction for Crittenden County Schools, said allowing technology in the classroom gives students the ability to communicate and collaborate with others, become more creative in problem-solving and to be innovative. He stressed allowing students to bring Internet-ready mobile devices into the classroom should be seen as an instructional initiative.

"We're not adopting it as a technology initiative. It's to increase the number of students who are engaged in real-life learning. Kids today are digital learners. It's who they are. They are connected all the time," Clark said, citing that the devices will be used as a resource to supplement learning in the classroom. "It's like having microscopes in a science class. It supports what is going on in the class."

"We're offering up our network to help students increase their learning opportunities in school. Increased learning opportunities, we feel, will increase ACT scores and improve college and career readiness skills, which will make them more competitive for scholarships."

Clark said students will not be allowed to connect to or use the devices in hallways. Teachers will have full authority to tell students to place devices down and determine when and how the devices are used in the classroom.

Before students may begin using devices in the classroom, school officials stress both the Student Acceptable Use Policy and Student Technology Acceptable Use Addendum forms will have to be signed by all students who want to have access. Parents or guardians of students under age 18 are also required to read and sign the agreement. Officials stress signing the document indicates that the student and parent or guardian have read and understand the expectations of the Crittenden County Board of Education.

To ensure responsible use and install proper Internet etiquette, each student will be required to take a digital driver's license test at the beginning of the school year. Students will also have to register their devices at school.

Clark said the digital driver's license tests will be managed through the middle and high school English classes. At the beginning of the school year, each student will go

CCES: Welcome back students

Welcome to Crittenden County Elementary School. The 2013-14 school year is going to be great. Our faculty and staff are excited to start a new school year with your child. We are fortunate to have our returning students and staff, and we are also happy to introduce to you to our new additions and changes for the 2013-2014 school year.

New to our team are :

- Ann Travis-Moore, kindergarten teacher; and
- Kinsee Henson, second-grade teacher.

Teachers changing grade levels are:

- Ashley Roberts, now a second-grade teacher; and
- Becky Bryant, also a second-grade teacher.

We also look forward to meeting the new kindergarten students that will be joining us this year. It's always exciting to see how much they learn and grow while at CCES.

Tabor

There is a lot of excitement ahead of us—new teachers, new friends, new skills to master and new construction. Construction has started at CCES with changes happening daily. Please, stay tuned to upcoming issues of The Crittenden Press for more detailed information, including procedures for morning and afternoon drop-off and pick-up.

The first event of the new school year will be Sneak-A-Peek on Aug. 5. There have been several teachers relocated, but maps will be available to assist you with finding their new locations. In an effort to accommodate everyone and ensure sufficient time is allotted, students whose last name begins with the letters A-L will visit from 5:30 to 6:30 p.m.; students whose name begins with the letters M-Z will visit from 7 to 8 p.m.

The purpose of this night is to allow students and parents the opportunity to locate their classroom, briefly meet the teachers, drop off school supplies, pay for meals and meet with transportation personnel, if needed. Also, there will be numerous sports groups, clubs and organizations set up in the multi-purpose room with information for your convenience.

The faculty and staff at CCES are committed to providing a comprehensive instructional program through a positive and engaging learning environment. We celebrate the individual differences of our students and help each of them to reach their fullest potential. CCES is committed to creating a school community that encourages students to make decisions that lead to honest behaviors, productive citizenship and respect for all people. Our school has so much to be proud of and to celebrate. It is a privilege to work with the dedicated staff at CCES.

As we begin this year, please remember that this is your school, and we welcome your involvement. We sincerely hope to get to know each of you this year.

Please, remember to complete the volunteer background check form that will be in your child's back-to-school paperwork. We must have these completed and

District meal charge policy altered

By JASON TRAVIS
STAFF WRITER

With a new school year comes a new district-wide policy on charging school meals. Crittenden County Superintendent of Schools Dr. Rachel Yarbrough said the new guidelines move the district toward a more specific policy on how school meals are charged.

"We needed to make our meal charge policy more specific and easier for our food service staff to follow. Over the last few years, at the end of the school year we have had an increase in the number of charged meals. We have to figure out some ways to reduce that. It becomes a financial liability on our food service program," Dr. Yarbrough said, adding that the food service program is a self-sufficient program. "We are trying to help in as many ways as we can. Food services can't be a loan agency."

Dr. Yarbrough also encourages parents who are in a difficult economic situation to complete the free and reduced meal application.

Ruth Harris, food service director for the school district, said letters will be sent out before the beginning of school explaining the new meal charging policy. If parents have any questions about the new policy to please call her office.

"It's not an ideal answer. Nobody wants to take food off a child's tray. Nobody," Harris said about the specifics of the new policy, which will provide an alternate meal to a student once the account balance reaches the maximum of $10. Harris also alluded to the fact that food services are a growing problem for the self-funded program. She also said some school districts do not even allow meals to be charged.

Harris encourages parents who need help in applying or filling out the application for free or reduced lunches to visit her office located at the Family Resource Youth Services Center or by calling 965-5052.

"We will be glad to help anybody fill the applications out. The guidelines have changed. The income level has gone up. It's possible if you didn't meet it last year, you could meet it this year,"

With a new school year comes a new district-wide policy on charging school meals. Ruth Harris (right), food service director for the school district, said letters will be sent out before the beginning of school explaining the new meal charging policy.

Harris said.

The new meal policy on meal charges reads as follows:

- Charges are permitted in situations where the child does not have the money to pay for breakfast or lunch. No a la carte items may be charged at any school. No adult shall be permitted to charge meals or a la carte items. The maximum charge amount allowed by a student is $10. Parents or guardians will be notified that their child has charged a meal and payment is expected the next school day. An alternate meal of a serving of milk, one bread item and one protein will be provided to a student once the account balance reaches the maximum of $10. Should the meal charges exceed $10, legal action will be initiated against the parent or guardian in either small claims court by the school board attorney or through the county attorney's office, depending on the nature of the account and the charges.

- The school administration will be responsible for contacting the household by phone call, letter, home visit by school official or any other means available to them to notify the home that the child in question has exceeded the maximum charge amount of $10.
- Staff shall communicate to the parent or guardian that "prepayment" for meals is an option due to the computerized point of sale system utilized in the school cafeterias. Online or telephone payment by check, credit card or debit card will be available through mySchoolBucks also.
- If the situation is a result of the economic condition of the household or changes in that condition, the school administration shall make available to the household an application for free or reduced price meals and provide any needed assistance in completing the application. Meal service to children in these situations shall not be interrupted.

mySchoolBucks.com to ease meal payments

By JASON TRAVIS

Soon there will be a more convenient way for parents to pay for their children's school meals, and it's only a mouse click away.

Crittenden County schools will join other area school districts that use mySchoolBucks.com, an online system that allows parents or guardians to make deposits into an account for their children in order to prepay for cafeteria purchases. Parents can set up an account for each child in their household according to the school they attend in the district. The amount of money deposited can be determined by the parent and can include amounts for a whole month or even an entire school year.

Services Director Ruth Harris said each transaction does cost $1.95. Transaction fees and deposits to a child's account can be charged to a credit or debit card or electronic check. Parents with multiple students in the school district can make deposits for all of their children in one transaction. The $1.95 fee is applied only when a transaction is made. A charge is not applied to review a student's account.

Harris said many individuals who already conduct online banking and bill paying will want to use the system for its convenience.

"It's totally secure. The system is compliant with all security regulations and card industry requirements," Harris said, adding that other area school districts such as Livingston, Lyon, Calloway and McCracken counties are currently using the online payment system.

In addition to convenience, mySchoolBucks can eliminate worries about children carrying money to school. It also allows parents control and efficiency. The online system allows parents to check balances, review transaction history and receive low balance e-mail alerts at no charge. A child's cafeteria purchases can also be viewed. Harris said there's even an option for parents to transfer funds from one of their children's account to another if necessary.

CCHS: Welcome back students

Greetings from Crittenden County High School. I look forward to starting my fourth year at CCHS, and the staff and I look forward to Aug. 7 when the students return from summer break.

We are excited to watch our continued growth in college and career readiness. CCHS teachers work diligently to provide our students with the skills necessary to be successful in college/career opportunities. We strongly encourage them to return to our community with their skills as our community continues to support our school system.

Please join us on Facebook and Twitter for current information about what is happening at CCHS. We also have a new and improved website which will soon have teacher pages for keeping up with what is happening in our classrooms. Please log in at www.crittenden.ky.schools.us to access the high school page for updates and to view the 2013-14 Student Handbook, which is found under the Resources link.

I would like to share some information that we feel is necessary for you to know before school begins:

- Bring Your Own Technology: The 2013-14 year will be a major movement for improving our instruction with 21st Century Learning skills by allowing student-owned electronic devices for teacher-designed activities. Our students will all acquire a "digital driver's license" at the beginning of the year to get their device registered for school use. Cell phones, iPods etc, will still be allowed for personal use before school and during lunch in the multi-purpose room only.
- Next Tuesday and on July 30 from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m., the following will be made available at the school: New student registration, schedule pick-up, student drivers can choose their parking space and acquire a $5 parking tag, updates to student contact information and completion of permission forms to attend Crosswalk Learning Center.

- On Aug. 6 the high school Back to School Bash will be held from 5:30 to 7 p.m. A central office representative will be in attendance to provide parents with access codes to the Infinite Campus Parent Portal to access grades. Food services will provide information on accessing cafeteria accounts on-line with the option to add money to your child's account.

- The Crosswalk Learning Center (CLC) is a thriving program servicing all CCHS students for tutoring and enrichment. Director Cheryl Burks provides students with a variety of activities throughout the year during the school day as well as after school. I strongly encourage students to utilize the services of CLC during the school year for subject enhancement along with ACT, COMPASS, EXPLORE and PLAN preparation. Burks will be at the Back to School Bash to provide information on activities and aca-

CCMS: Welcome back students

On behalf of the faculty and staff at Crittenden County Middle School, I would like to extend a warm welcome and invitation to you. We are gearing up for an exciting year at CCMS, and look forward to starting the school year and working with each of you as the year progresses.

Marshall

Please know that you are always a welcome guest in our school. Please feel free to call or stop by in the upcoming weeks before school starts if you have any questions or concerns.

At CCMS, developing strong parent-school relationships is one of our top priorities this year, and it is vital to our school. We want to encourage you to participate in school events, volunteer or serve on one of our committees during the 2013-14 school year. We welcome volunteers in the classrooms and at our school.

Changes for the 2013-14 school year include several new staff. We would like to extend a warm welcome to Neal Bryant, Samantha Peek and Cara Merrick. Bryant will be teaching sixth-grade science, Peek will be teaching sixth-grade math, and Merrick will be teaching seventh-grade science.

Also new to CCMS for the upcoming year is Bridgeway Learning Center. Bridgeway Learning Center will be located in the sixth-grade wing of the school building in Room 403. The learning center is sponsored through a 21st Century Learning grant that our school district received. Students will be receiving information about the services the after-school program provides at the Back to School Bash and in their first day blue folders.

To kick off our new program, the Bridgeway Learning Center will host a Sixth-grade Jumpstart on Monday through Wednesday of next week and July 29-31. Jumpstart will run from 9 a.m. to noon each day. Sixth-grade students will be able to learn valuable information for starting middle school, spend time with their teachers and become more comfortable with their classrooms and lockers. For more information about the program, please feel free to contact the director, Melissa Shewcraft, at 965-5221 or stop by her table at the Back to School Bash.

On Aug. 6 from 5:30 to 7 p.m., CCMS and CCHS will host a Back to School Bash in the CCMS gym and multi-purpose room. We plan to have lots of valuable information for parents and students. Students will also be able to pick up their schedules, sign up for various clubs, prepay lunch accounts and gain valuable information to prepare them for their return to school in through 90 minutes to two hours of training spread out over the course of approximately two weeks. Training will address ethical, safe and proper use of the Internet. During this time, students will also register their devices in their English classes onto the school district's network.

Ben Grainger is the district technology coordinator and chief information officer for Crittenden County schools. He said each student may register two devices—such as a smartphone and a tablet—onto the school district's network. The hardware address of the student's device will be tied to their active directory account. Once registered, school officials will be able to track what sites students visit online while at school and can store log files of those sites visited for at least 30 days.

Grainger stressed each student will be responsible for the care of his or her own device. If a student experiences a problem with the device, the schools can't troubleshoot or repair any student-owned device. However, students can share a device if one goes down during class.

A survey last semester of incoming sixth-graders through seniors indicated that 79 percent of them have an Internet-ready device to support learning at school. For those students who don't have a device, the school district is planning on using funds to purchase mobile devices that students can check out during the day for classroom use. Clark said a $10,500 carryover from a federal grant has been set aside to purchase the devices. The board of education is matching that amount from the general fund for a total of $21,000.

"We hope to have by August a certain number of devices ready for student check-out. If those devices work out well, then we will look at buying some more," Clark said, indicating the district would purchase a set number of devices at the start of the semester. Once those prove to be effective and solid devices for student use, the district would then purchase additional devices.

"It will probably be a roll-out over this fall semester before we exhaust t h a t $21,000," he said.

Clark said the middle and high schools will decide how students may check out the devices. One option would be to have devices checked out through the library. Other options may include a check-out managed by department courses or by grade level.

Using mobile devices for classroom instruction isn't new to Crittenden County schools. Many teachers have been using the technology in a limited number of class assignments.

Middle school language arts teacher Tiffany Blazina told school board members last March about her experience using technology in the classroom. She became involved with the initiative after being appointed to a school-based technology committee.

Blazina uses the instructional program Edmodo, an online, interactive homework site that allows teachers to customize lesson plans, conduct student polls, quizzes and organize assignments by individual classes. She said students and teachers benefit from the program because it allows students the convenience of online homework. The program enables teachers to provide feedback online and logs information such as class averages and completion rates.

School officials believe the digital conversion plan will not only engage and support student learning but also prepare them for future career opportunities.

"I am excited about the increased access students will have to some kind of digital device during the school day which will lead to better student engagement and learning," said Crittenden County Schools Superintendent Dr. Rachael Yarbrough. "Our learning environments are becoming more digitized which is a better match for our digital learners that are in our classrooms right now."

For more information about the digital conversion plan that allows students to bring their own technology to school, visit the website <http://www.crittenden.ky.schools.us/byot>.

SCHOOL SAFETY

The best way to have a successful school year is to be safe in and outside of school. Start by following these important safety tips:

Never go anywhere with a stranger.

Don' t walk anywhere alone. Always go with a buddy.

Know your home address and phone number.

Let your parents know if you go somewhere after school.

Tell your parents or teachers if someone is bothering you.

Learn fire drill procedures at school and at home.

Bridgeway Academy to engage CCMS students

By JASON TRAVIS
STAFF WRITER

New to the Crittenden County Middle School this year will be the Bridgeway Learning Center.

In January, the Kentucky Department of Education announced the school district received the 21st Century Learning Center grant for the middle school. Much like the Crosswalk Learning Center at the high school, the Bridgeway Center will focus on academic assistance as well as entrepreneurial and enrichment activities. There will also be emphasis placed on college and career readiness.

Melissa Shewcraft is the site coordinator for the Bridgeway Learning Center. Her responsibilities include planning programming and meeting the needs of participating students. She encourages all incoming sixth-graders to participate in Jumpstart in July, a student program that will focus on making the transition to the middle school easier.

Programming is scheduled from 9 a.m. to noon on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of next week and July 29, 30 and 31. The program gives sixth-graders the opportunity to meet with their teachers who will provide information regarding what students need to know as they begin middle school.

“We are going to talk to students a lot about different expectations as they come into the middle school. They will get to meet and spend time with teachers from the sixth-grade team,” Shewcraft said. “We are also going to talk about some of their fears and concerns about entering middle school and see how we can address those in order to make it a comfortable and smooth transition.”

Shewcraft encourages students to participate each day of the program. Pupils will engage in team building as well as activities that incorporate science, technology, engineering and math—or STEM education. Shewcraft emphasizes the activities will be geared so that students are learning while they are having fun. Emphasis will also be placed on the incoming sixth-graders becoming familiar with general aspects of middle school.

“We will be taking students around the school building and letting them become familiar with locations and talk about the daily schedule. We are also going to work with them on lockers and how they open them,” Shewcraft said.

While the Jumpstart program is for incoming sixth-grade students, parents are encouraged to attend the Back to School Bash on Aug. 6.

Shewcraft said regular programming for the Bridgeway Learning Center will begin in early September and will include morning and afternoon sessions. Morning tutoring and homework help sessions will be scheduled from 7 to 8 a.m., Tuesday through Friday mornings. Afternoon sessions will be scheduled from 3 to 5 p.m., Monday through Thursday. Students who need transportation can be taken by bus to designated drop-off sites within the county.

“We will have certified teachers as well as student tutors from the high school to help students with their academic needs. From 4:15 until 5 p.m. will be our enrichment time where students will be given the opportunity to participate in a variety of different programs that fit their needs,”

Shewcraft

Shewcraft said. “I sent out a student-interest survey at the end of the school year and have gotten a lot of great ideas about different programs. I will be sending out a registration form in the CCMS registration packets that students get at the beginning of the school year.”

Shewcraft said filling out the Bridgeway registration form does not obligate any student to attend programming, but it does allow them to participate in any program that they wish throughout the year. Registration forms are required for students to attend programming.

A 2003 graduate of Crittenden County High School, Shewcraft graduated from Murray State University in 2007. Previously, she has worked in the school district as an instructional assistant at the alternative school and assisted at the Crosswalk Center at the high school.

Shewcraft is looking forward to the many opportunities available for students at the Bridgeway Learning Center and is excited to work with the faculty and staff at the middle school.

Middle, high schools adopt same dress code policy

By JASON TRAVIS
STAFF WRITER

Crittenden County middle and high school students will be expected to follow the same dress code when the 2013-14 school year begins Aug. 7.

According to Crittenden County Middle School Principal Teresa Marshall, committees from the middle and high school came together to review and update the dress code so that both schools would be in line with each other in relation to dress code.

“The middle and high school wanted to make sure that the dress code was the same so that it would be an easy transition for eighth-graders going to high school. Also, having the same dress code allows for the rules to be the same for middle school students who are in classes in the high school building,” Marshall said, alluding to such courses taken by middle school students as band, art and Algebra I.

According to the student handbook, both CCMS and CCHS students are expected to observe modesty, appropriateness and neatness in their clothing and personal appearance. While student dress is often considered an expression of personality, clothing that is distracting to other students, teachers or the educational process of the school is not acceptable. Students, as well as parents, should assume the responsibility for acceptable appearance, using good judgment to avoid clothing that could be distracting to the learning environment. The principal or a principal-designee will make the final determination should there be any question as to what is considered appropriate for school.

The following is a list of general guidelines regarding dress code for both middle and high school students:

- Clothing is expected to be free of sexually-suggestive remarks or drawings, profanity, racial slurs, violence or references to tobacco, drugs or alcohol.
- Hats, caps, toboggans or sunglasses may be worn only on special days approved by the principal unless for medical purposes. Head apparel brought to school must be kept in lockers.
- Students are expected to remove sweatshirt hoods while in the building.
- Sleepwear is not acceptable for school except on special days approved by the principal.

- Tattoos must not be in conflict with the overall learning atmosphere of the school. Tattoos that are gang-related, promote violence and/or are pornographic in nature must be kept covered.

- Students are discouraged from wearing visible piercings other than in the ear. Students will refrain from removing/replacing their piercings during the school day to minimize risk of infection and any distractions to the learning environment. The use of piercing instruments at school is a violation of safety under the student code of conduct.

- Chains or studded accessories are not appropriate for school.

- Articles of clothing or accessories that could present a hazard to the individual or to others will not be permitted.

- Heavy coats and/or long outerwear are not to be worn inside the school building unless an exception is granted by the principal for a heating emergency. Outerwear is to be kept in the student's locker or in a designated location in the building.

- Physical education teachers and coaches will determine acceptable attire for their activities, but physical education attire cannot be worn on return to the regular classroom.

- Student backpacks and bags are to be kept in either the student's locker or a location designated by the office. Purses may be carried only if they are as small as a half-sheet of paper or smaller and are kept under the student's desk during classes.

- Tops must have sleeves and completely cover underarms, abdomen, back, shoulders and midriff when students are seated, when arms are raised or when bending over.

- Revealing, low-cut and/or extremely form-fitting tops are not appropriate for school. Cleavage must be covered at all times.

- Tops must not be sheer or lightweight enough to be seen through. This includes mesh or lace garments unless a top that fits dress code is worn underneath.

- Skirts, shorts and dresses should be no shorter than four inches above the crease in the back of the student's knee. This includes skirts or shorts that are worn with leggings. Students will not be allowed to pull down their skirts/shorts to the appropriate four-inch measurement.

- Pants, shorts and skirts must have no holes or tears higher than four inches above the knee unless they have been patched with a permanent patch of similar material.

- Pants must be worn at the top of the hipbones or higher. Underwear is not to be visible.

- Stretch-to-fit leggings, pants or capris must be worn with a top that is no shorter than four inches above the knee (The deciding factor here is if they are stretched to fit the skin; if not, they are loose-fitting and can be worn with any length top.)

Students who are in violation of the dress code will not be permitted to stay in class until they have corrected the problem by calling home for clothing or changing into their own dress-code appropriate clothing. Students will be sent to the in-school suspension room for the day if the dress code violation is not corrected. Dress code violations will be documented in the student's disciplinary record with the following consequences:

- First offense: Parent notification and warning.
- Second offense: Parent notification and one detention.
- Third offense: Parent notification and two detentions.
- Fourth and subsequent offenses: Parent notification and in-school suspension.

process. Signs will be posted to alert parents and students to the building's temporarily relocated entrance and administration offices.

Once school begins, Tabor stresses all exits in the building will be available for use in the event of an emergency.

“That’s a big safety concern, and I understand. We have 700 students in the building and 70 staff members. If we do have an emergency, we need to be able to get people out of here in a very timely manner. That’s one of our goals, and we will make sure that does happen,” she said.

However, only some exits will be used for recess and for loading and unloading buses.

School officials said more information on the flow of morning and afternoon traffic will be available for parents before the school year begins.

Parents will have an opportunity to learn more about the changes at CCES during Sneak-a-Peek, scheduled for Aug. 5. The event begins at 5:30 p.m. for students beginning with the last name beginning with the letters A-L. It will continue from 7 to 8 p.m. for students names beginning with the letters M-Z.

Tabor asks parents to adhere to the schedule for the event and arrive at the designated time to ensure everyone has an opportunity to learn more about changes at the school. Signs will be posted and school personnel will be on-site to direct traffic to let parents know where to go the night of the event. Once school begins, officials will again be on-site to help direct the flow of traffic in the morning and afternoons.

The new set of restrooms is scheduled to be completed by fall break. Renovations to the front office suite are scheduled to be complete in late December or January 2014.

Aerospace program new high school elective

By CHRIS MCGEE
STAFF WRITER

Students in Crittenden County who are interested in pursuing aviation or aeronautical engineering as a career now have an outlet thanks to an aerospace program that will begin in the fall at Crittenden County High School. The aerospace and aviation course will be an elective for students.

Al Starnes—director of pupil personnel, transportation and school health and safety with the school district—has been instrumental in bringing the program to fruition at the school.

"This came about because I started working on obtaining my private pilot's license," Starnes said. "I attended an airport board meeting one night and (Marion-Crittenden County Airport manager) Jim Johnson was talking to me about an aviation program they were doing in Frankfort."

Starnes then brought the idea before Superintendent of Schools Dr. Rachel Yarbrough and CCHS Principal Rhonda Callaway. And they liked it, Starnes said.

He said one of the first steps involved with getting the program started is to have certified facilitators so that students will be able to take the online course. Teachers Tammy Duvall and Glenna Rich, as well as Starnes, traveled to Frankfort in June to become certified facilitators.

Although there will be some cost to students, it will be minimal.

"The first course is Introduction to Aviation, and it will be free. The second and third courses will be Space Systems and Aviation and will cost $100 per course per student," Starnes said. "The last course will be a dual-credit course with Morehead State University."

According to Starnes, Johnson has agreed to donate hangar space at Marion-Crittenden County Airport. The board of education has put in a request to BuildAPlane.org, an organization that works to place donated aircraft in schools and other aviation education groups across the United States at no charge.

One project students will work on during the course is designing a wing, which will also give them some engineering experience.

Starnes said that, ideally, the program is designed for students to take one course a year beginning their freshman or sophomore year. However, he added that the high school is not going to hold back juniors and seniors who would like to participate, since the program is just getting started.

"For those students who already have a full schedule and don't have room for an elective, there will be a before and after-school program for them to participate in," he said.

It's just another example of college and career readiness on which the school district has become focused.

"Before this program came along, most students who were interested in aviation would go into commercial flying," he said. "Now, with this program, they can get the flying time and experience and not have to pay so much out of their own pocket."

"We are always looking to expand the career opportunities for our students," Starnes added.

NEW TEACHER HIRES IN THE DISTRICT

CCES: Moore

Ann Moore will be a new kindergarten teacher at Crittenden County Elementary School starting next month.

Moore was valedictorian of the 2009 Crittenden County High School graduating class. She attended Murray State University and earned a degree in elementary education in December 2012.

In addition to student teaching first and fourth grades at Lyon County Elementary School, Moore substituted in third and fourth grades at Crittenden County Elementary School in the last academic year for teachers on maternity leave.

"Teaching kindergarten has always been my dream," Moore said. "I am very excited to start the new school year with a wonderful faculty and staff. I'm especially looking forward to beginning a successful school year with my students."

A newlywed, Moore and her husband Matt were married in June.

CCES: Henson

Kinsee Henson will teach second-grade reading and social studies at Crittenden County Elementary School starting next month.

A Livingston County native, Henson graduated from Livingston Central High School in 2009. She received a degree in elementary education in December 2012 from Murray State University.

Her professional experience includes student teaching second and fourth grades at Calvert City Elementary School in Marshall County. After graduation, she worked a semester serving as a reading and math interventionist at South Livingston Elementary School, where she served as a volunteer for three years.

Henson said she is excited about the upcoming school year and the opportunity to work with the students and staff at CCES.

"The staff at Crittenden County Elementary School have been so welcoming, and I am truly excited to work with and learn from them," Henson said. "My goal for students is not only to instill in them a love for reading, but a love for life and each other. I want to teach them that there are amazing things to see and do in this world if they open their mind and that, with confidence and determination, they can achieve anything."

Henson is engaged to Bryan Potts of Livingston County. The couple plans to be married in June 2014.

CCMS: Peek

Samantha Peek is looking forward to spending quality time with students both inside and outside the classroom. Peek will teach sixth-grade math and coach the middle school cheerleaders beginning this academic year.

Peek was valedictorian of her Crittenden County High School graduating class in 2007.

"I am very excited to become part of the family at Crittenden County Middle School," Peek said. "I love the feeling of coming back to my former teacher's classroom and sitting at her desk. It's a surreal feeling. I have always bled Rocket blue and white. It is an honor to be a Rocket again."

Peek is certified to teach math and science in grades five through nine. She graduated from Murray State University in May and has student teaching experience at Caldwell County Middle School.

"I look forward to meeting my students and developing relationships with them as well as their families. I want my students to set goals for themselves, reach them and excel with flying colors past their set goals," she said. "My classroom motto," which is displayed on the bright blue wall of her classroom, is "Dream until YOUR dream comes true."

CCMS: Bryant

Marion resident Neal Bryant will begin teaching sixth-grade science at Crittenden County Middle School this year.

Bryant is a 1998 graduate of Crittenden County High School and a 2010 Murray State University graduate. He has been teaching for three years. He previously worked at Crittenden County Elementary School. His wife Becky is also a faculty member at the elementary school and will teach second grade.

He has two children,

Aubrey, 10, and Eden, 2.

"I'm looking forward to a new adventure at CCMS and being a part of a successful team. I can't wait to work with the great group of students that are coming to sixth grade this year," Bryant said.

CCMS: Merrick

Born and raised in Mt. Vernon, Ind., Cara Merrick will be teaching seventh grade science at Crittenden County Middle School.

Merrick is a 2009 graduate of Mt. Vernon High School and a 2013 graduate of Murray State University. She completed her student teaching at Graves County Middle School last spring.

As a science teacher, Merrick said she is excited about Crittenden County School District's new pilot program that will allow students to bring Internet-ready devices into the classroom for instruction. She said the program will allow teachers to incorporate more technology into lesson planning.

"I can't wait to meet all of my students and I hope they are excited and ready for their adventure in science," Merrick said.

Merrick's family consists of her mother and brother, who both reside in Indiana. She also has a grandmother who lives in Murray.

‘Sky’s the Limit’ in coming year

Isn't it amazing how quickly we move from one school year to the next!

The start of the 2013-14 school year is upon us and we are excited about the opportunities to show our students that the sky is the limit for their success in the Crittenden County School District. Yes, our theme for the upcoming school year is "The Sky is the Limit."

Let me inform you about a few of the great opportunities in the works for student learning:

- Crittenden County Elementary School is undergoing a renovation/addition project. Remember, this is a work in progress...Blessed will be those who are flexible during the first semester of the school year for all of us.

Dr. Rachel Yarbrough
Crittenden County Superintendent of Schools

Super News

- The district is in the process of a major digital conversion project for students and staff. At Crittenden County Middle and High schools, students will be allowed to bring their own technological devices to school. Our teachers are learning more ways to create engaging digital learning opportunities for all students!

- CCHS students will have access to a new career and technical elective option this semester—the Aerospace/Aviation Course. We are thrilled that high school students who want to pursue an aviation-related career or who are interested in learning more about this field will have a "real-life" learning opportunity within the school day.
- Our food service program will offer a way for parents and families to prepay for meals online using the mySchoolBucks.com site. What a great 21st century way for parents to view student accounts and stay up to date.
- Crittenden County will be piloting the first propane-fueled school bus for transporting students during this school year. We are excited to be the first district in Kentucky to move in this energy efficient direction.

Our faculty and staff that your children will encounter on a daily basis within our schools are among the most capable and talented you will find anywhere. They will do whatever it takes to make your child's educational experience purposeful and engaging.

Together we will make this one of the best school years ever on behalf of student learning.

Let the sky be the limit not only in our district but in our community as well this year.

Lice prevention top of list to start year

STAFF REPORT

As the new school year begins, school officials urge parents to speak with their children about proper hygiene, such as hand washing and prevention of head lice.

Head lice are spread most commonly by direct head-to-head contact. However, much less frequently, they are spread by sharing clothing or belongings onto which shed hairs carrying lice or nits have fallen. The risk of getting infested by a louse that has fallen onto a carpet or furniture is small.

The U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention report head lice survive less than one to two days if they fall off a person and cannot feed; nits cannot hatch and usually die within a week if they are not kept at the same temperature as that found close to the scalp.

The following are steps that can be taken to help prevent and control the spread of head lice according to the CDC:

- Avoid head-to-head (hair-to-hair) contact during play and other activities at home, school, and elsewhere (sports activities, playground, slumber parties, camp).
- Do not share clothing such as hats, scarves, coats, sports uniforms, hair ribbons, or barrettes.

- Do not share combs, brushes, or towels. Disinfect combs and brushes used by an infested person by soaking them in hot water—at least 130 degrees—for at least five or 10 minutes.
- Do not lie on beds, couches, pillows, carpets or stuffed animals that have recently been in contact with an infested person.
- Machine wash and dry clothing, bed linens and other items that an infested person wore or used during the two days before treatment using the hot water laundry cycle and the high heat drying cycle. Clothing and items that are not washable can be dry-cleaned or sealed in a plastic bag and stored for two weeks.

- Vacuum the floor and furniture, particularly where the infested person sat or lay. However, spending much time and money on housecleaning activities is not necessary to avoid reinfestation by lice or nits that may have fallen off the head or crawled onto furniture or clothing.
- Do not use fumigant sprays or fogs; they are not necessary to control head lice and can be toxic if inhaled or absorbed through the skin.

Principal explains why CCES class rolls absent

By JASON TRAVIS
STAFF WRITER

This year, the class roll for Crittenden County Elementary School will not be published in The Crittenden Press' annual Back to School special.

CCES Principal Melissa Tabor said the decision to not publish the list was made by the school's site-based decision-making council out of security concerns.

"The SBDM council decided, due to safety and confidentiality concerns for the students, not to publish the student home room list in the paper," Tabor explained. "We started several years ago a transition day in the spring where the students actually transition to the next grade level. We did that on May 7 of this year. Not only do they just transition to the next grade level, they transition to their homeroom teacher for the next year. So at that time the students know who their teacher is going to be and the parents know as well."

Tabor said the council researched and found other schools that do not publish class roll lists.

"We haven't had anything to happen, but we're always looking for safety issues. We just thought with the transition day, parents already know and students already know and there was really no reason to publish the list," Tabor said. "As always if parents have any concerns at all, please feel free to call the school office at 965-2243."

Rockets open pre-season workouts

STAFF REPORT
Everything is a bit leaner this year around Rocket football's pre-season camp. From the players to the coaching staff, everything is just a bit smaller than in years past. Pre-season drills began Monday at the high school. The staff is down to three full-time coaches. Head Coach Al Starnes expects some volunteer help soon, but for now his assistant coaches are Jared Brown and Jeremy Wheeler, the team's new defensive coordinator who replaces longtime coordinator Vince Clark following his retirement from coaching. Theo Nichols and Aaron Berry are expected to join the staff soon as volunteers. Denis Hodge has moved down help head coach Donnie Morgan Phillips at the middle school. Both will also help on the varsity sideline on Friday nights. The girth has gone from the trenches, too. Starnes says his team will be a bit smaller up front, but will rely on quickness to make up the difference. The team returns just three players who started virtually every game last year. They are Travis Gilbert, Noah Dickerson and Brenden Phillips. Zack Tinsley, Dylan Hollis and Daniel Wagoner also were major contributors last year and will fill important roles this season, as will Lane Wallace, who was hurt most of last year. "We are very inexperienced, but it may be the hardest working group

I've ever had," Starnes said. "They are very dedicated, hard-working and coachable." The Rockets will play just a nine-game schedule this season, and it will be a bit less difficult than the last few years. Gone from the lineup are Tilghman, Trigg County and Madisonville. New on the slate are Webster County, Fulton and Muhlenberg County. Other non-district games are with Marshall County, Union County and Hopkins Central in the Warrior Bowl. The district schedule includes Caldwell County, Murray and Ballard Memorial. "Do I want to play a nine-game schedule, 'No,' but we were limited as to other teams that would play us," Starnes said. "The only other games we could have picked up were with Madison Southern, McCracken County, Christian County or Fort Thomas Highlands." Starnes said coming off a rigorous schedule the last two years, he didn't think his new inexperienced team would have the personnel to face much larger schools as those available for a 10th game. "We tried to get another game in Illinois, Tennessee and Missouri," he said. "There just weren't any that would fit." The Rockets are looking for local corporate sponsorship for its Warrior Bowl. Its primary sponsor, the National Guard, has cut its financial commitment in half, the coach said. Anyone interested in partnering for the two-night bowl series should contact Starnes.

Crittenden County High School's cheerleaders attended the National Cheerleading Association Cheer Camp June 12-14. They received two superior ribbons and captured the prestigious Herkie Team Award named for NCA founder L.R. Herkimer and given to the team exemplifying leadership, values and teamwork. The girls also received the SPOT Award, given to teams for displaying excellent technique in safety, spotting and stunt technique. Kali Travis and Katie Travis were chosen as All-American Cheerleaders. All-American nominee status is awarded to cheerleaders displaying superior qualities in certain aspects of cheerleading including leadership, showmanship and technique. Cheerleaders are (front from left) Lauren McKinney, Kali Travis, Sadie Easley, Katie Travis, Elle LaPlante, Arieal Wright, (back) Bristen Holeman, Sydney Leibenguth, Lauren Beavers, Tania Thompson, Madison Lynch and Sydney Hunt. Coaches are Cindy Crabtree and Stacey McKinney.

The Marion Bobcats 9-under travel baseball team closed out its season with a championship in the Trigg County Summer Slam Baseball Tournament last weekend. The Bobcats finished their season 12-17. The club is made up of players from Marion and the surrounding area. Pictured are (front from left) Logan Smiley, Gavin Smith, Ben Evans, Tanner Beverly, Landon Pace, (second row) B.J. Cullum, Isaac Parish, Hunter Hopper, Jackson Shoulders, Jake Vaughn, Ian Ellington, (back) coaches Chris Evans and Donny Beverly. The Bobcats beat the 10-u Hopkinsville Hitters 13-9 in Saturday's championship game.

Legal Description: Situated in Crittenden County, Kentucky:

Beginning at an iron pin set in the West right-of-way on U.S. 641 and Ky. 91, being about 4.8 miles South of Marion, about ½ mile South of the center of Crayne, being 30 ft. from the center of the highway and being S. 17 deg. 54 min. W. 133.50 ft. from an iron pin marking the corner of the source tract with Bigham, and being at approximate Kentucky Coordinates (South zone) North 346,500 ft., East 1,320,525 ft.; thence with the meanders of the West side of the highway S. 16 deg. 30 min. W. 50.32 ft., and S. 14 deg. 03 min. W. 99.85 ft., and S. 11 deg. 07 min. W. 100.00 ft. to an iron pin, another new corner; thence with new division lines this day made N. 67 deg. 30 min. W 179.89 ft. to an iron pin, and N. 13 deg. 46 min. E. 249.90 ft. to an iron pin, and S. 67 deg. 27 min. E. 178.18 ft. to the beginning containing 1.001 acre by survey, as surveyed by Billy J. May, LS 878 on August 13, 1991.

Please note there has been an Affidavit filed converting the 1992 Southern Home double-wide mobile home, VIN #DSDAL2710AB, to real estate, see Miscellaneous Book 2, at Page 343, Crittenden County Court Clerk's Office. This home now has the status of a site-built home and is conveyed herewith. Also included with this conveyance is an Easement appurtenant, benefiting the above described property. Said Easement is now of record in Deed book 191, at Page 499, Crittenden County Court Clerk's Office.

Being the same property conveyed to Dennis Guess, no marital status shown who acquired title by virtue of a deed from Jennifer Moss (formerly Jennifer Henry) and her husband, Dennis Moss, dated November 14, 2002, filed November 15, 2002, recorded in Deed Book 194, Page 564, County Clerk's Office, Crittenden County, Kentucky.

Address: 5143 US Highway 641, Marion, Kentucky 42064

Parcel Number: 060-00-00-032.03

Subject to all restrictions, conditions and covenants and to all legal highways and easements.

Commonly known as: 5143 US Highway 641, Marion, KY 42064

1. The Master Commissioner will sell same at public auction to the highest and best bidder or bidders at the Courthouse door. The Master Commissioner will take from the purchaser or purchaser's cash payment in full, or a bond with good and sufficient surety or sureties, bearing interest at a rate of 12% per annum from the day of sale and payable to the Master Commissioner within thirty (30) days from the date of the sale. If a bond is given, the Master Commissioner shall require the purchaser to make a cash deposit of the sum of (10%) ten percent of the bid amount to be applied to any expenses occasioned by any default of the purchaser. Said bond shall have the force and effect of a judgment and shall be and remain a lien on the property sold as additional security for the payment of the purchase price.

2. In the event the Plaintiff becomes the purchaser of the real estate at the Master Commissioner's sale, and if the Plaintiff's bid is less than its lien adjudged herein, Plaintiff may comply with the terms of sale by taking credit upon this Judgment without making the cash deposit or executing the sale bond as provided for in this Judgment.

3. Upon default of the deposit or posting of bond by the purchaser, the Master Commissioner shall immediately resell the property upon the same terms and conditions set out herein.

2. The Purchaser shall take the real estate free and clear of the claims of the parties to this action, but it shall be sold subject to the following:

a. Current year real estate taxes not yet delinquent affecting the real estate for which the purchaser shall take no credit on the purchase price, and further any delinquent State, County and/or City real estate taxes sold pursuant to the provisions of KRS Chapter 134 to any private purchaser during the pendency of this action;

b. Easements, restrictions and stipulations of record;

c. Any matters which would be disclosed by an accurate survey or inspection of the property.

d. Any current assessments for public improvements levied against the property.

The Plaintiff, the Master Commissioner and the Court shall not be deemed to have warranted title of the real estate to the purchaser.

The real estate is indivisible and cannot be divided without materially impairing its value and the value of the Plaintiff's adjudged lien thereon. As a result, the real estate shall be sold as a whole for the purpose of satisfying the Judgment Liens herein adjudged against the real estate.

Upon receipt of a written request from the Plaintiff prior to the sale, the Master Commissioner shall withdraw the sale without an Order from this Court.

Plaintiff is allowed to submit their specified bid via facsimile prior to the day of the sale. Upon confirmation of sale the risk of loss shall pass to the purchaser.

The purchaser of the real estate is entitled to possession of the real estate upon confirmation of the sale by the Court. To secure the purchaser possession of the real estate, a writ of possession will be issued and entered by the Court.

Dated this the 22nd day of June, 2013.

Crittenden chapter attends FFA Camp

On the week of July 8, Crittenden County officers attended FFA Camp at the Kentucky FFA Leadership Training Center in Hardinsburg where they were involved in many activities along with their officer- or chair-training classes. The members competed in various sports individually and as a chapter including waterball and volleyball. Chapter members had the opportunity to select a sport to compete in that was based on their interests. The classes that the officers attended guided the members through the duties and responsibilities depending on which office or chair the member held. Along with the sports, the chapter conquered the ropes course, which was a series of activities that helped with trust, teamwork and leadership. Pictured above are (top, from left) Kasey Herrin, Dustin Collins, (middle) Cody Caraway, Cole Foster, Chris Winders, Paige Hicks, (bottom) Layken Belt, Faith Sitar, Harley Groves and Logan Shewcraft.

7 sign on for womanless beauty show

STAFF REPORT
Seven contestants have officially entered the Womanless Beauty Peagant to be held at 7 p.m. July 26 at Rocket Arena. Each participant will compete in formal-wear, talent and interview categories. Additionally, photographs of each contestant's legs will be posted in the lobby, with audience members donating money to serve as votes for the contest. Money jars will be placed beside each picture, with the winner announced during the pageant.

Retired teacher Bonita Hatfield will serve as emcee of the event.

Contestants thus far include Rocket basketball coach Denis Hodge, assistant basketball coach Matt McMain, teacher Ken Geary, The Crittenden Press publisher Chris Evans, assistant speech coach and Crittenden County High School alumnus B.J. Tinsley, Rocket football coach Al Starnes and middle school teacher Ben Thompson.

Each contestant will be allowed one make-up artist/beautician/coach, who will accompany them backstage.

Additional contestants will be announced next week.

Admission is $3, and concessions will be available.

Proceeds from the event will benefit the CCHS junior trip to Washington, D.C., planned for the spring of 2014.

Correction

Due to a reporting error, the name of the assistant principal at Livingston Central High School was incorrectly published in the June 27 edition of The Crittenden Press. Stephanie Rice is the assistant principal at the school.

degree trafficking in a controlled substance (barbituate) and first-degree trafficking in a controlled substance (opiates). He was also indicted on misdemeanor charges of possession of marijuana and possession of drug paraphernalia. The arresting officer was Mike Lantrip, an Eddyville detective working for the Pennyriple Area Narcotics Task Force. Court records indicate that inside a vehicle belonging to Cunningham, authorities on June 13 found 14 suspected Lortabs, 13 suspected Percocets, 1.8 grams of alleged meth, compressed marijuana buds, glass pipe, rolling papers, digital scales, a .22-caliber weapon with 100 rounds of ammunition and $895 in cash.

In a separate case dated June 5, Cunningham was indicted on a charge of first-degree trafficking in a controlled substance (meth). Court records say that a cooperating witness was used to make a controlled buy from Cunningham in a parking lot in Marion. Police say the transaction was captured on audio and video recordings. Lantrip was also the arresting officer in this case.

- Stephen W. Lee, 26, of Marion was indicted on two felony charges of first-degree possession of a controlled substance and tampering with physical evidence. Lee was also indicted on misdemeanor charges of having a controlled substance not in its original container and second-degree possession of a controlled substance, and a traffic violation for having an inadequate silencer. Court records say that on May 31 Lee was stopped on Main Street in Marion for having a loud exhaust. Officer Bobby West's police report states that the suspect threw a pill onto the ground which was later allegedly identified as oxycodone. The suspect said he never had the pill in his hand, according to the police report. West allegedly also found under the passenger seat a blue pill believed to be hydrocodone, which the suspect denied was his, too.

- Mark Menser, 39, of rural Crittenden County was indicted on felony charges of manufacturing methamphetamine by complicity and cultivation of five or more marijuana plants by complicity. He was also indicted on misdemeanor charges of possession of drug paraphernalia and possession of marijuana by complicity. Court records say that on June 11, Menser, either acting alone or in complicity with another, possessed several items used to manufacture meth inside a home on Ky. 120 in Crittenden County. While executing a search warrant, authorities allegedly found marijuana plants growing in the woods and a small bag of pot at the house.
